...the World of Mobile Security

Giesecke & Devrient has stood for security for 160 years. As the world has advanced, we've kept pace. From traditional banknote printing and security documents to smart card based solutions for banks, mobile network operators, public transportation companies, business enterprises, and OEMs.

The digital world is part of our daily lives. New technologies develop, interconnect, and increase in complexity; new markets, networks, and value chains grow out of change and progress. Our expertise as the world's foremost security technology company unlocks this world for you and your business.

G&D Mobile Security streamlines the interfaces of these new developments, powered by our traditional expertise and experience in security and our leading market position. We are members of all important industry standardization bodies and take a leading role in any new discussion on the future of mobile technologies.

We're your world of Mobile Security.

What is G&D Mobile Security?

We develop cutting-edge technologies that enhance security for people when they pay, communicate, and authenticate. In this, we focus on excellence throughout all areas – quality, reliability, and integrity.

What does G&D Mobile Security do?

We make the hardware that turns your smartphone into a digital wallet (credit card, SIM card, your travel smart card, or token). Beyond the hardware, we also create the secure environment in which these devices communicate with the world. In doing so, we lay the basis for applications such as mobile payment with NFC, M2M, and Mobile Money.

What can G&D Mobile Security do for me?

We are your one-stop provider of solutions, products, and services for all your security needs. We make sure that your mobile solutions interact seamlessly with the highest security possible. We guide and support you in implementing new systems and technologies. We're your partner in making the world secure.
